Protecting Yourself From Rape

There is no sure way to avoid being raped, but it helps to be psychologically prepared. Every woman must accept that she is a potential victim and should learn all she can to protect herself. Below are some tips from R.A.P.E. Relief Center. For more information, call them at 581-RAPE.

At Home

1. Make sure your door has a peephole, dead-bolt lock and a chain lock.
2. Keep entrances well-lighted and shrubs trimmed so prowlers can't hide.
3. Have house and car keys in hand so you can get inside quickly.
4. If you live alone, use your first initial or a male name in the phone book and on your mail box.

Walking or Driving

1. Stay alert and don't use shortcuts through vacant lots or alleys.
2. Wear comfortable shoes in case you have to run.
3. Every time you leave your car, lock all of the doors.
4. If your car breaks down, raise the hood, lock yourself inside and wait for the police. If someone stops to help, have that person call a service truck or the police.

If Attacked

1. Rapists sometimes follow a set routine. If you find a way to distract him, maybe you can escape.
2. Women have kept themselves from getting raped by claiming to have VD or cancer or by reciting scriptures.
3. Stay in control of your wits. Can you talk your way out of being raped? Can you run? If so, where will you go?
